A dispatch was sent by R. A. Moseley, chairman of the republican state committee of Alabama, who has just received the indorsement of the republican national committee. While saying that there is no republican before the Alabama people he claims that the Lake View electoral ticket, which has been put up by the Kolb branch of the democracy, will be elected by a genuine plurality of 75,000. He estimates the democratic frauds at 50,000, and thinks it certain the eleven electoral votes of the state will be cast for Harrison.

Jos. H. Manley of Maine, member of the executive committee of the republican national committee, gives a rather encouraging account of the situation in Indiana. He says that the contest will be very close, but expects Harrison to win on a local issue of taxes, caused by the action of the democrats, and so rearranging the tax levy that a greater burden now falls upon the farmers, who, Mr. Manley thinks, will in consequence vote for Harrison.

Franklin Murphy, chairman of the republican state committee of New Jersey, speaks confidently of the election of the republican candidate for governor, John Kean, jr., but has not so much to say of the success of the republican national ticket. Mr. McLaughlin, the attorney said, is confined to his house by illness. But he (Mr. Severin) would be responsible for his appearance. Bail was fixed at $800, but no papers were signed, the defendants being simply held in their own recognizance. The alleged libel was the publishing of an article about the exmayor leaving the city under a financial cloud.

Grebnizki is governor of the Copper and Commander Islands, belonging to Russia, in the Bering sea. He is returning home with his family after an official exile of ten years. Grunwaldt is chief of the Russian Sealskin Company. The sealskin company bears a semi-official relation to the im-perial government of Russia and it was the intention of the party to visit Washington in a semi-official capacity for the purpose of conferring with Secretary of State Foster as to the best method of dealing with seal poachers, but the governor's time was dimited and he could not await the return of Secretary Foster

Before going on board Mr. Grunwaldt said to a reporter: "Whatever may be the result of our talk with the Washington authorities next spring we shall return to our sealing possessions prepared to resist the intrusion of poachers on our preserves from all quarters. We shall have sufficient power from the imperial government of Russia, and if a British thief shall come there is his sealing scheme will each him. in his sealing schooner we will catch him.

Graham, he alleges, had been idle all day and had been drinking.
Graham struck him, he says, in the face with marriageable women is obviously immoral.

Mr. Abbey has secured the American rights of the sporting drama, "The Prodigal Daughter," now playing at the Theater Royal, Drury Lane. The intense realism of this play has been described at length in previous calls by He finally managed to get up and fearing that his life was in danger he took the bottle of acid from his pocket and drawing the cork threw its contents at Graham. Schmidt ran down the street, pursued by several of the employes, and was captured by Policeman Mallon en he saw the policeman he threw the bottle away. SCHMIDT CONTRADICTED.

The story told by the three conductors was directly contrary to that of Schmidt. They allege that he has swindled several of them out of money by sharp practices and when spoken to has threatened to throw acid on them if he was not let alone. They say they were standing in a group in front of the receiver's office when Schmidt approached. They accused him of sharp practice, and Schmidt, who is of very quick temper, became enraged, and, draw-

Review of the Market. Henry Clews' Weekly Financial Review says:
The stock market has been unsettled, chiefly owing to the higher rates for money. Bank reserves have steadily declined until the surplus reserve is almost wiped out. Early in June the banks held a surplus of about $23,000,000. Such banks held a surplus of about $23,000,000. Such market, however, is not a strong argument in support of the calamity side of the market. If support of the calamity side of the market. If it came from distrust, as scarce money some-times does, then such an attitude on the part of the bears would be well taken; but as money is now active, because it is well employed all over the country for legitimate business uses, it only goes to show that the country is under an impetus of great prosperity.

The only other disturbance has been the action of Chancellor McGill toward the coal combination, which affected all the coal shares adversely. The present outlook for our rail-roads is an unusually bright one; but, as the bear side is pretty strongly backed through the influence of tight money, long stocks may be forced out from time to time.

WILLIAM H. CLAGETT DEAD. of a Well-Known Citizen at an Early Hour This Morning.

Mr. William H. Clagett died at 5 o'clock this morning at his residence, 1006 16th street. The end came so quietly and peacefully that he passed away as one who drops into a gentle slumber. It was the end of a long and plucky struggle against the inroads of disease. Through it all the patient never lost that unfailing good humor which was a characteristic of his life. Several times during the long period of the continuance of the sickness those about him

thought that the end was near. Mr. Clagett, however, persisted in taking an active interest in life, and his sick room was the place where the latest news of the day was heard with the greatest interest. humorous observations on current events found their way about the city and when the patient became tired, as he said, of watching the leaves on the trees in front of his house, he announced his determination to go out. An idea of this sort he managed to carry out if at all possible. For more than two years Mr. Clagett has been an invalid suf-fering from a complication of diseases. His trouble finally resolved itself into a dropsi-His trouble finally resolved itself into a dropsical affection, which was the immediate cause of death. A year ago last June Mr Clagett decided to go to Europe and try the effect of some celebrated springs, especially those at Carlsbad. A great many of his friends were surprised when they heard of the proposed trip, as they supposed he was too near death's door to be thinking of going to Europe. However, he went, and while he was not specially benefited by the trip, still he was not injured, and he by the trip, still he was not injured, and he came back alive, which was more than his friends thought that he would be able to do. His disease took a more serious turn last summer, and his last and fatal sickness may be said to date from that time. Mr. Clagett did not lose his grip or his interest in life. As long as it was possible he was brought down stairs in the elevator and carried to a chair on the grass at the front door, where he could get stairs in the elevator and carried to a chair on the grass at the front door where he could get a more extended glimpse of the world than was afforded from the windows of his bed room. He heard so much about the decorations of the city in honor of the Grand Army encampment that he made up his mind to go out and see it for himself. So on the day before the parade he was borne to a carriage and slowly driven through the streets of the city. It was the last time that his even city. It was the last time that his eyes rested upon the places which had become so dear to him through the many years of his life in this city. It was more than idle curiosity that stimulated him to leave his bed, and once more pass through the streets of Washington. of his prime had been devoted. was always a public-spirited man and when there was to be a meeting of citizens to should be there to arouse the proper spirit. He had a bluff, hearty manner and a certain dry humor which caused his sayings to be passed from month to month. Perhaps no private citizen was better known in this city than, William H. He accordingly shipped and made several voyages. Upon his return he assisted his father in business, and finally form-ing a partnership with Mr. William Shuster a was not slow in seeing the future growth of the city, and in 1867, retiring from the dry goods business, he began to deal in real estate as a broker. He continued in this business until he virtually retired from active life. He became interested in the public affairs of the city, and as a good citizen he took his part in any movement which was designed to advance the interests of the city. His active identification with city affairs will be remem-bered by those who lived here at that time

THE SALE OF UNWHOLESOME FOOD. Several days ago the Commissioners requested Maj. Moore to detail Lieut, Hollinberger to go with Dr. Burns on a tour of inspection through the Center Market and re-port to the Commissioners the result of their observations on the food offered for sale. Assistant Attorney Thomas today, agreeably to a request from the Commissioners, states in an opin-on that section 8 of the ordinance of the board of health to prevent the sale of unwholesome food in the cities of Washington and Georgetown applies to the case in question and that it is all the police regulation necessary, as it is broad enough to cover the case of offering unbroad enough to cover the case of onering un-wholesome food for sale. The Commissioners submitted this to Mr. Thomas for the purpose of framing a regulation having the punishment of dealers selling unwholesome food in view. DRAWBACK CENTIFICATES AND TAXES.

The assistant attorney for the District, Mr. S. T. Thomas, in an opinion today upon the act of May 25, 1892, in relation to drawback act of May 25, 1892, in relation to drawback certificates, says that the act was merely intended to enlarge the act of June 2, 1890, so as to make the drawback certificates issued under the latter act available for the payment of general or current taxes and that the proviso in the former rent taxes and that the proviso in the former rent taxes and that the proviso in the former rent taxes and that the proviso in the former rent taxes and that the proviso in the former rent taxes and that the proviso in the former rent taxes and that the proviso in the former rent taxes and that the proviso in the former rent taxes and that the proviso in the former rent taxes and that the proviso in the former rent taxes and that the proviso in the former rent taxes and that the proviso in the former rent taxes and that the proviso in the former rent taxes are the act of June 2, p.m., GEORREE H. DUSHANE. Suddenly, October 20, 1892, at 6.30 p.m., GEORREE H. DUSHANE, in the fity-seventh year of his age.
